

A Special Note To Moms & Dads From Emily

I am a playwright (and mom to Evan, 7 months). We created an event for moms (and dads!) called Mom's Night Out on June 13th. Use the link below for tickets and use the code MomsNightOut for a discount. And join us for drinks afterwards at Boston Chops.

A little bit about the play: I wrote this play before I had a child. These characters are SUPER childless, but they are humans and I love them for their flaws. If you need a night out, which you and I both know you do, please take the opportunity to come see this play and laugh with me at the concerns of the young and carefree. These young women are versions of ourselves; earlier, simpler versions. Let's watch them say funny things about penises!

This is escapism at its best, but also it says something real about being a woman and trying to be an adult, which even though we are parents we are all still trying to figure out how to be adults, right? We can all relate to this journey.

Here's the link for tickets:

<http://www.bostontheatrescene.com/season/Three/>

MomsNightOut gets you $20 tickets for Saturday, June 13th.